English

The English Department is a lively and friendly team of specialist teachers. We are a highly successful department, consisting of skilled practitioners who contribute not only to the teaching and learning within English, but also more widely throughout the school, by sharing our considerable expertise, and leading on whole school initiatives. Notable for strong teaching in the department, we create a positive and inclusive rapport between teachers and students. We embrace change, and are constantly seeking to strengthen and adapt our provision, in order to maximise the potential of our students.

We work together on long-term policies and have a well-developed bank of shared resources. We also operate a rigorous system of assessment at Key Stages 3, 4 and 5 in order to offer appropriate intervention to pupils to help them maximise their progress. Oracy is a strength of the department and oracy within the school has been nationally recognised.

Departmental aims

The English Department aims to achieve the following:

- To create a rewarding and stimulating learning experience for all students.
- To enable students to experience a diverse range of texts and to encourage reading for pleasure.
- To deliver specific and measurable learning outcomes, in preparation for examination.
- To offer a variety of transferable skills and useful knowledge in preparation for further study and/or working life

How we teach

In Key Stages 3 and 4 there are two higher-ability groups as well as mixed ability teaching groups and learning support groups. In Years 12 and 13 we teach A Level groups in our mixed Sixth Form. We teach both English Language and Literature and English Literature. We are well resourced and make use of the library, and ICT resources, as well as Drama strategies to make lessons varied, interactive and fun.
